

Free Parking in Vegas Becoming Rare, 2016's Most Interesting Webcams, and More: Today's Travel Briefing

A roundup of travel news from all over

By Zac Thompson Frommers.com 12/19/16

Good morning, everybody! Here's the latest from the world's parking lots, webcams, and faraway locales.

* THE YEAR'S "MOST INTERESTING WEBCAMS" ANNOUNCED

If you're looking for vacation inspiration, a way to explore the world without leaving your home, or simply a way to waste an hour or 12, EarthCam, a company specializing in webcam services and technology, has released its list of the 25 Most Interesting Webcams of 2016.

The list was chosen by a panel of judges led by, of all people, comedian Paul Reubens—better known as Pee-wee Herman. No word on whether Cowboy Curtis and Miss Yvonne also provided input.

The winning cams are set up at sites all over the world, including the Acropolis in Athens, a polar bear habitat in Canada, the kitchen of a Creole restaurant in Alabama, a flower shop in Switzerland, and an animal shelter in Estonia.

To see the full list of winners go to EarthCam's website, where you can also follow links to check them out in real time. Watch the following promotional video for a quick look at each feed.