

Alcoa EagleCam named one of 25 best webcams of 2012

Jan 10, 2013, 7:04am EST

Paul J. Gough

Alcoa's EagleCam is getting its time in the spotlight.

Earthcam.com calls the webcam that shows a bald eagle nest at Alcoa's (NYSE: AA) Davenport, Iowa, manufacturing facility as one of its "25 Most Interesting Webcams of 2012." The cam follows Liberty and Justice, two bald eagles that had one eaglet in 2011 and three more in 2012. It got 12 million page views in 2012. That's way up from more than 1 million in 2011.

That's nothing new to Pittsburgh Business Times readers: A post about the EagleCam was the most popular story on the newspaper's website in 2012.

Want some closer to home? There are a handful of Pittsburgh webcams listed on Earthcam.com, including the Cathedral of Learning and Aviary's FalconCam.

