Weather Forecast Calls For Cold And Snow In NYC
03/16/14

You can watch the New York City St. Patrick's Day parade without even being there, thanks to EarthCam.

It is showing the parade on its webcam on Monday March 17, starting at 11 a.m. And with EarthCam you don't have to worry about the weather because NYC on St. Patrick's Day will be in the mid-20s and it will be snowing.

Upgraded just in time for the parade, EarthCam has a webcam on 5th Avenue which is a good vantage point to watch as the bands, floats and marchers make their way down New York's "path of prestige" on their way to St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The New York City St. Patrick's Day Parade is one of the city's greatest traditions, with the first march taking place in 1762. Millions of spectators flock to the city each year to stand on the sidelines and enjoy this true Irish celebration.

And a great NYC Irish bar to be in on St. Patrick's Day is called, quite simply, The Irish Bar.
