

Hang out with Cochrane polar bears

Wednesday, April 13, 2016 1:25:31 EDT PM

Go into the enclosures at the Cochrane polar bear habitat with EarthCam's new HD live streaming webcams. See resident polar bears Ganuk and Henry, and watch live as they explore their habitat, play around in the snow and cement a place in everyone's heart.

Goofy Ganuk is six years old and weighs more than 900 pounds, while newbie Henry from down under is now topping 600 pounds at just three years old. Both bears love to play and eat. As Cochrane is on the edge of the wilds, and the facility is renowned for providing a very natural environment, the cameras at the habitat show the bears enjoying wide open spaces, a nine-acre lake, pools, moose meat, fish and the unique swim-with-the-bear experience.

The Cochrane Polar Bear Habitat is both the largest and the only captive bear facility in the world dedicated solely to polar bears. The devoted team is committed to raising awareness about polar bear care and the difficulties they face due to climate change. Spend a day with the polar bears with EarthCam's live webcams.
